Dumplings with Royal Baking Powder

No dessert is more delicious, wholesome and appetizing than a well-made dumpling, filled with the fruit of the season. By the use of the Royal Baking Powder the crust is always rendered light, flaky, tender and delicate, and the dumpling, when well boiled, will be dainty and wholesome, and may be eaten steaming hot with perfect impunity.

RECIPES—One cup of flour; thoroughly mix with it three teaspoons of Royal Baking Powder and a small teaspoon of salt. Add a little water, and make a ball the size of an egg, and then add one large potato, grated in the flour; after the butter is well mixed, stir in milk and taste to suit. Add a few drops of nutmeg, and a few pieces of dough large enough to close over four quarters of an apple (or other fruit as desired) without sealing. Place the dumpling in a greased pan, and boil until it is done and wholesome, and may be eaten steaming hot with perfect impunity.

In all receipts calling for cream of tartar and soda, substitute Royal Baking Powder.

For a dinner or supper fall meal, add a special dressing and wholesome food, and is more economical. Royal Baking Powder is specially made for use in the preparation of the finest and most delicate cookery.

The Lady Next Door.

Mr. W. envied the lady next door because she always seemed so well and happy. "She enjoys life and I don't," said the discontented woman.
How would she change pieces with her!
At last she made the acquaintance of the doctor, who said, "I can't tell you why and this is what the lady told her: Happy? Of course I am, for I enjoy perfect health. My dear Mrs. W., you face tells me why you are not happy. You are suffering from functional derangements. I was a martyr Demorest's Family Magazine.

For December, 1889.

We had never fully comprehended what was meant by a "Family" magazine, until we had given the fine Christmas number of Demorest's Family Magazine thorough examination.
It is certainly best entitled to use the word "Family" in its title, for every member is considered in its make-up.
Its beautifully illustrated articles are equal to any in the high-class literary magazines. Especially noticeable in the December number is one about "Uncle Sam's Money," giving a description of how our coin is made, the illustrations starting with a view of the Mint, and going through every process until the coin is put into circulation. The "Day Nurses" taken us among the women, and we find them as useful as can be done for their little ones. Every father and mother will appreciate this comprehensively and finely illustrated article, and stories are too numerous to mention, as can be appreciated when we say that the December number contains over two hundred illustrations and every member of the family is thought of. But though our space is limited, we must mention the beautiful oil picture, "Christmas Morning," which is indeed worthy of a frame. We would like to say that Demorest's Family Magazine is a great success.

The Best Time to Marry.

Probably the best time for the average civilized woman to marry would be any age between 24 and 30.
It is not said that no woman should not marry earlier or later than either of these ages, but youth and health and vigor are ordinarily at their highest perfection between these two periods. Early marriages are seldom desirable for girls, and that for many reasons. The brain is immature, the reason is feeble and the character is unformed. The consideration which would prompt a girl to marry at 17 would, in many cases, have little weight with her at 25. At 17 she is a child, at 24 a woman. Where a girl has intelligent parents the seven years between 17 and 24 are the period when mind and body are most amenable to wise discipline and best repay the thought and toil devoted to their development.—The Hospital

A CAT'S SAGACITY

The House Delight Taken by It in the Killing of a Yearling.

Speaking of intelligent cats, we over one when we were camped on the Big Sandy river who knew a thing or two. The Doctor was not handsome; none of us thought that, but in a country where we saw only Indians and coyotes week in and week out, a cat was a good companion for a man who had to watch the camp when the others were away with the cattle. The most noticeable thing about the Doctor at first blush was his face which made him look like a bald-faced horse. To add to the odd effect caused by this blotch, one of his eyes was green and the other a sort of brown. But if the Doctor was not noted for his beauty he was much respected on the Big Sandy, and no little consideration was shown him in looking after his wants. It is certain that as far as provisions went he always fared better than any man in the camp.

The cancer continued to grow until it was about five inches long, and three wide. The flesh sloughed off, black, rotten and foul, and it was most impossible to procure a servant that would wash him the air the air that he lay so long in so foul that it would sicken any one who entered his room.

AN EMPIRE FALLS.

A Revolution in Brazil Succeeds Without War.

The Government Overthrown and a Republic Proclaimed in a Few Hours.

Peace Prevails and the People Satisfaction.

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 15.—A dispatch was received this afternoon from Consul General Dockery, at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, announcing an outbreak of a revolution against the Brazilian Government, and that the Minister of Marine had been killed.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 16.—The news received here last evening of a revolution in Rio de Janeiro, as the result of a desire on the part of the populace for the establishment of a republic on the ruins of the empire, created a feeling of profound surprise, but aroused no excitement.

A Brazilian cabinet has been organized as follows: President, without portfolio, Gen. Dodoro Da Fonseca; Minister of the Interior, Aristides Lobo; Minister of Foreign Affairs, Ezequiel Bocoura; Minister of Finances, Doctor Barbosa; Minister of Justice, Campo Sales; Minister of War, Benjamin Constant; Minister of Marine, Admiral Vanderhoff; Minister of Agriculture, Demitrius Ribeiro. Senior Bocoura is a journalist. Senior Barbosa was a member of the Chamber of Deputies. Senior Constant is a journalist and a professor in the Polytechnic school. Gen. Da Fonseca had command of the Province of Minas Gares. He was recently punished for insubordination. The Chamber of Deputies has been dissolved, and the Council of State has been abolished. Public opinion appears to be in favor of the new form of government. Everything is quiet.

A dispatch received this morning states that the Minister of Marine was not killed as reported yesterday, but that he was shot and seriously wounded by rebel soldiers. The imperial ministers have been placed under arrest and are kept in close confinement. The provisional government has guaranteed protection to the members of the imperial family. The Emperor is at his summer palace at Petropolis, twenty-five miles north of Rio de Janeiro. All business in the city is suspended, but there is no danger to life or property.

The new Brazilian Government has issued a manifesto announcing that the monarchy has been abolished. Various provinces have sent assurance of support to the new regime. The former Prime Minister has been arrested. The Emperor will be treated with the greatest consideration.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—From gentlemen intimately acquainted with Brazilian politics, it is learned that the revolution in Brazil is purely military and only formidable from the lack of troops outside of Rio to bring against the revolutionists. The force in Rio is about 6,000. There are not more than 10,000 in addition, and they are scattered all over the Empire. Gen. Fonseca, who is at the head of the revolution, was accused of insubordination last July, and the Minister of War proposed to have him court-martialed, but the Emperor forbade it. If the whole force in Rio is of one mind things can be carried with a high hand. The Parliament is to meet next Wednesday and many of the Senators and Deputies are in the city. If they agree to recognize the new Government, Dom Pedro's abdication may be looked for. If they do not they will have to go to jail. As the revolutionists control the cable, definite news may not be received for several days. The revolution comes as a great surprise. No financial troubles exist. The August elections were peaceful. The Liberal Cabinet proposes popular measures and the Emperor is universally liked. The coup d'etat may affect the status of the Brazilian delegates to the Pan-American Congress.

LIMA, Nov. 17.—The latest advice from Rio de Janeiro, dated Nov. 16, 9:55 p. m., are to the effect that the Providence of Bahia is opposed to the revolution. Viscount Ouro Preto, ex-Minister of the Interior, and Senior Mavunck, a banker, have been arrested. The Emperor is locked up with suspicion. The provisional Government has abolished the monarchy.

The Revolutionary Commission addressed a message to the Emperor, telling him to leave the country in twenty-four hours. The Emperor acknowledged these and leaves by the packet Alagoas, accompanied by the ironclad Riachuelo. The Brazilian fleet will give the Emperor a certain amount to live in Europe. The Revolutionary Commission addressed a message to the Emperor, telling him to leave the country in twenty-four hours. The Emperor acknowledged these and leaves by the packet Alagoas, accompanied by the ironclad Riachuelo. The Brazilian

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

I. N. Cowan to Sue Jones.
COLORED.
Sam Huddleston to Carrie Stacker.
James Taylor to Alice Tucker.

The suit of H. Clay McCord against Wm. B. Long, both of Croft, for $10,000 damages has been on trial for several days. The suit grew out of a difficulty that occurred at the prohibition election in March in which Long struck McCord on the face, inflicting injuries that came near being fatal. The jury took the case Saturday but had not agreed when the hour for adjournment arrived. They separated and re-assembled yesterday to further consider the case. A verdict was returned about noon giving plaintiff one cent and costs. It was found by 11 jurors only, one of them, Mr. D. M. Whittaker, being absent on account of an injury sustained Sunday.

ROV. A. J. Fristoe, of Baltimore, preached two sermons at the Baptist church Sunday, which were listened to by attentive congregations. He is a apulit speaker of wide reputation and his discourses were as interesting and fervent as they were logical and profound. Mr. Fristoe is a young man only 28 years of age, but he has been in the ministry six or eight years. He made a most favorable impression upon all and has consented to remain in the city and take again Wednesday night.

The Metcalfe Manufacturing Co. has been awarded the contract to furnish the engines and boilers for the branch penitentiary at Eddyville. The machinery to be put in will cost about $5,000. This enterprise is rapidly becoming one of the leading manufacturing establishments in this end of the State.

CHEAPER GAS.

The gas company has made an important reduction in its scale of prices, which have heretofore been based on the basis of $1.75 per thousand, with discounts ranging from 10 to 40 per cent, according to the amount consumed. Hereafter there will be but two discounts, 40 per cent to small consumers and 50 per cent to those using $15 per month.

The metre rent to all consumers, 10 cents per month, has been taken off. In addition another discount of 5 per cent. will be given those who pay their bills by the 10th of the month.

The company is now in good condition and seems to be giving general satisfaction. Under the management of Mr. A. H. Hille, who became Superintendent last January, the number of consumers has been increased from 110 to 150 and none of the old patrons have quit. The city has also increased the number of its street lamps, to 74 and needs more.

Mr. Hille is a first rate man for the interests of the consumers as well as the company. It is mainly through his efforts that the company has been induced to cheapen its rates.

An Important Ruling.

The trial at Greenville last week of W. H. Whitson, a wealthy farmer, for killing his tenant, Orlando B. Latham, a hotel keeper at the village of Dumor, in 1885, was of much interest, not only from its sensational surroundings, but from the remarkable instructions given by Judge Grace to the jury.

Latham suspected his landlord of improper intimacy with his wife, who is a remarkably handsome woman and the mother of one little girl. On the night of October 5 Latham had his suspicions aroused by some indications of an assignation and taking his pistol, went round to the rear of his premises just as Whitson was retreating. He fired two shots, but missed. Whitson returning the fire with fatal effect. Latham gasped out, "O, Whit, you have killed me; but I did not intend to hurt you" and expired. On a trial Whitson tried to prove an alibi. J. B. Garnett, the Commonwealth's attorney, made a powerful argument, entangling Whitson in a web of circumstantial evidence with masterly skill.

Judge Grace instructed the jury in the usual manner as to the law of self-defense and then added this provision:

"Provided, however, that if the jury believe from the evidence that at the time and on the occasion of the killing of Latham, the said Whitson was then and there wrongfully and unlawfully about the premises of the said Latham, for the purpose of soliciting criminal intercourse with Ellen D. Latham, wife of the deceased, and that in that event he could not avail himself of the right of self-defense, although the jury may believe that his life was in danger at the hands of said Latham; and the killing of said Latham by Whitson under the circumstances would be either murder or manslaughter, depending upon the fact whether the killing was done with malice aforethought or in sudden heat and passion, as described in the instructions of the court."

The important law is here set forth that the seducer who slays a person assaulting him to protect the sanctity of his home is on the same plane with the burglar who slays the man who is trying to protect his property. The jury failed to agree and the case was continued.

The Nisbet Affair.

There is still more or less mystery about the sudden departure of Dr. W. K. Nisbet last week. Mrs. Nisbet does not know where he is now, as nothing has been heard from him since his first letter. His father-in-law, Mr. O. S. Brown, cannot understand his conduct. He says he would have given the young people a home and set them up to housekeeping if they had only intimated that they wanted to leave his house. Public opinion is against Dr. Nisbet and the expression is general that he has acted very badly.

Mr. H. P. Rives will be a Democratic candidate for county surveyor.

CREAM OF NEWS.

HERE AND THERE.

Horseflesh Burned in Clarksville. A Clarksville special to the Nashville American says: "James P. Gill's livery stable in this city caught fire Friday night about 9:30 o'clock and was burned to the ground. Fifteen head of horses were destroyed. Nearly all of the animals were fine roadsters, and among their number was the famous racer, Ingleswood. Quite a number of vehicles were also burned. The stable was a brick building, 100 feet in length by 50 in width and two stories high. The origin of the fire is unknown, but it is thought to have started in the lofts. The loss will be between $30,000 and $40,000, with no insurance. Ingleswood was valued at $5,000 and was owned by Maynard & Gill."

The fine three-year-old colt, "Withers," recently sold to Capt. Herndon by Mr. R. B. Withers of this city, for $1,500, was also burned. Capt. Herndon had refused $2,500 for the colt.

Pretty Bouquets.

The bouquet display at Konezka & Durand's jewelry store Friday and Saturday was quite a success, considering the lateness of the chrysanthemum season and the inclemency of the weather. There were 18 competitors for the prizes, which were awarded at 3 p. m. Saturday. The ladies selected as judges were Mrs. J. W. Rust, Mrs. A. G. Bush, Mrs. F. L. Ellis and Mrs. Jno. P. Campbell. The three prizes were awarded as follows:

1st.—pair solid gold earrings, Mrs. Mary Payne.

2nd.—Solid gold face pin, Mrs. S. H. Harrison.

3rd.—pair solid gold cuff buttons, Mrs. H. C. Gant.

Attempted Burglary.

About 1 o'clock Sunday morning an attempt was made to burglarize the residence of Mr. J. F. Gordon. The noise made in prizing the window open waked Mr. Gordon, who arising fired through the window but missed the burglar. About two hours later Mr. Gordon was again aroused by a noise at the front door. Arising, he opened the door just in time to hear the would-be-burglar leave the premises hurriedly. This time he was unable to get a shot at him and he made good his escape.

New Policeman.

Officer O. A. West, who came from Crofton last January to take a position on the police force, resigned Friday and will return to that place to live. Chief Campbell has appointed H. H. Golay to the vacancy, until the Council meets. Mr. Golay has had some service as a special policeman and is capable of making a good and efficient officer.

A freight brakeman named Neff fell under the cars at Mannington Saturday night last and his left leg was so badly crushed that it had to be amputated just below the knee.

AFTER THE POST OFFICE.

Mrs. Nat Wright goes to Washington on a Matter of Business.

The Courier Journal of Friday, contained the following article:

"Mrs. Nat Wright, of Hopkinsville, passed through this city yesterday on her way to Washington, D. C., where she is engaged on a mission which will be a surprise to all her friends. Without saying anything of her intentions, Mrs. Wright very quietly left Hopkinsville two weeks ago ostensibly on a pleasure trip, but instead, she proceeded to Washington, where she called upon President Harrison and Postmaster General Wanamaker, and candidly advised them for the office of Postmaster at Hopkinsville.

Her application was entirely formula, but with the few words given, a good deal of encouragement, and while Mrs. Wright does not say that she was promised the office, she seems confident that she has the place in her grasp. Mr. Wanamaker, she says, after hearing her verbal application, told her to go back to Kentucky and write her application, inclosing with it the endorsements which she said she could readily get. She left for her home yesterday afternoon, and it is her intention to return to Washington in a few days, when she expects to bring her commission back with her.

Everybody is invited to the social meeting of the Endeavor Society of the First Presbyterian Church next Thursday night. The exercises will consist of chants, recitations, vocal solos, etc., and all who attend will certainly enjoy them.

HOW COLUMBUS FOUND AMERICA.

Colonial stood upon the deck:
"Look here, boys, they cried;
"Not I! I perish on the waves!" Great Christopher replied.

Next day the crew got out their knives And went with Captain C.
"Go home," they said, "and save our lives."
"Wait one more day," said he.

"Then if I can not tell how far We're from the nearest land I'll take you home." "Agreed we are!"
Answered the sea-knight.

The night came on, and as the astute Colonial heard the land, And measuring the water deep, Took notes and went to bed.

To-morrow dawned. Naught could be seen But water wet and cold.
Columbus, smiling and serene, Looked content and bold.

"Now, Cap! How far from land are we?"
"Just ninety fathoms," Captain C.
Most truthfully replied.

"And if you doubt it, heave the lead And measure, same as I!"

"You're right," the sailors laughed. "Great head!"

"Well stick to you or die."

Again that fourteen ninety-two Adventure was found.

Because the great Columbus knew How far off was the ground.

LEARNING A LESSON.

There May Be Knowledge Not Worth the Purchase.

"Not happy!" cried Mrs. Secor, in general amazement, as she was looking at the pretty rose-cheeked bride who had been her "graduating scholar" six months before, and who had now attained to the dignity of a wedding ring and the prefix of Mrs."

"I'm the most wretched creature in the world," said Lally Vane, crushing back a great hysterical lump out of her throat, so that the dry-goods clerk who stood on the opposite side of the counter, showing Mrs. Secor some "domestic sheetings," should not surprise her inward disturbance.

"Lally," said the good lady preceptor of St. Sigmund's Academy, "are you in earnest?"

"Never was more so in my life," dolorously answered Mrs. Vane, pretending to be absorbed in the fringe of a pile of toweling. "I've only come up to town because I couldn't be happy down in the country!"

"But your husband?"

"Oh, he's all right," responded the bride. "Only, of course, he can't respect me, now that he sees what a wretched nonentity has married."

Mrs. Secor paid for her goods, wrote out the address to which they were to be sent, and then, taking Mrs. Vane's arm, led her out into the bright, sparkling sunniness and looked her full in the face.

"Now, Lally," said she, "tell me what all this means."

The young creature threw her arms passionately about the old lady's neck.
"Oh, dear! Mrs. Secor!" she cried out, "why didn't you teach me to make bread and pies, and butter, and weave rag carpet, instead of logarithms and guitar practice, and ancient history? I'm a dead failure! My mother-in-law says that I'm no better than a wax doll, and she's right. And if I know of any way to help Joe to a divorce, I'd do it."

"Oh," said Mrs. Secor, beginning dimly to comprehend matters. "I see You don't succeed as a housekeeper."

"That's it, exactly," said Lally.

"The griddle-cakes burn, and the bread is scorched, and the rice pudding tastes smoky, and the recipes won't come right, and my plum pudding looks like mud. Oh, dear!—and Joe's cousin, Melissa, is impudent, all because she knows what a little silly stupid I am!"

"My dear," said Mrs. Secor, "all this is very foolish of you. There is no reason that you should not acquaint yourself thoroughly with housekeeping. The same brain that conquered mathematics and mastered history need not quail before a few details appertaining to porcelain, kettles, and spice-boxes."

"Ahh! but," sighed Lally, "you don't know how hard it is."

"Try," said Mrs. Secor. "Put your whole soul into it. Determine that you will succeed."

So Mrs. Vane went back, "determined to succeed!"

Meanwhile, Joe Vane, the handsome, warm-hearted young Hercules of a husband, was pleading his wife's cause with the domestic Vehmgericht at home.

"She is so young, you know," said he.

"She's twenty," said old Mrs. Vane, a Medusa-like female, with high cheek-bones, and light blue eyes like balls of steel; "and when I was twenty I did the whole work of your father's farm, Joseph, and had twin into the bargain."

"And she's inexperienced, too," added Joe; "just out of boarding-school, you must remember."

"Stuff and nonsense!" said Miss Melissa, the elderly cousin, who had been "disappointed" when Joe married the pretty young girl instead of her autumnal self. "Is a woman expected to be set on the mantel-tree and covered up with a glass shade? Folks have got to work, I say. If they expect to eat."

"We are none of human butterflies," said grandmother, mildly; "and if your wife really loves you, Joseph, it will be her greatest pleasure to save your money and study your interests."

Joe whistled in an unconcerned sort of way. Lally was Lally, he thought, not Melissa, nor grandmother, nor yet old Mrs. Vane.

"I'd rather hire a girl," said he, "to help her."

"Hire a girl!" shrieked the three women in chorus. "Hire a girl to do the work of this small family! Is the man crazy? Why shouldn't your wife work as well as Deacon Peabody's wife, or Captain Zeke Johnson's wife, or any other of the farmers' wives around here?"

"She's different, you know," said Joe, somewhat abashed by the general outburst of remonstrance.

"He's setting up an ideal, and failing down to worship it," groaned Miss Melissa.

"It's downright sinful," sighed grandmother.

"Joseph, do try and be a little responsible," argued Mrs. Vane.

And between them all, they so bewildered poor Joseph that he had not a word of remonstrance to utter when Lally came home and put on a huge plaid gingham gown which had belonged to Mother Vane, and tucked her sunniy hair up under a pocket-handkerchief, and declared that "she was going to learn to keep house in good earnest."

"Do you think you can manage it, dear?" said Joe, dubiously.

"Of course I can," said Lally.

"My son, don't discourage her," said Mrs. Vane, solemnly. "We are put onto this world to work, not to play."

"And you know your income don't admit of much retinue of servants," sourly added Miss Melissa.

"Then if I can not tell how far
We're from the nearest land
I'll take you home." "Agreed we are!"
Answered the sea-knight.

The night came on, and as the astute

REVIEW OF FASHIONS.

Popular Ideas for Stylish Midsummer and Early Fall Toilet.

The costumes of the last century and a half furnish the majority of the popular ideas for midsummer toilet, and the quaint simplicity of the Empire gowns lends itself so naturally to the soft, dainty fabrics—the old-fashioned figured lawns and dotted muslins, the sheer organdies and heavier French muslins, the Japanese cottons, figured jockeys, and honest bookmakers on the turf; that the continued and increasing popularity of the almost endless modifications is not surprising.

The full skirt of ungored broadstaffing straight all around is modified for rich fabrics and for the use of matrons by having slight drapery across the front or the sides; and a deep gathered flounce of lace or of the fabric is a fashionable finish for the front and sides when there is no drapery and the skirt is scant like those of the gowns worn in the early part of the century.

Even in mounting a skirt of straight broadcloth to the belt there is opportunity for variety. Some are simply gathered all around; some are gauged, some or shrilled to a greater or less depth, either all around, on one or both hips, or across the front only; others have lengthwise tufts in front from the top to any desired depth, gradually lengthening toward the middle and forming a sort of pointed culture; and a becoming style for a person with large hips is to run the top, to the depth of about six inches, in lengthwise tufts about an inch wide and the same distance apart, thus reducing it to a width that will fit easily over the hips. For the latter ar-

The simplest kind of full waist, with one seam down the middle of the back and one across each arm, and extending about four inches below the waistline, is a general favorite for summer toilets. It adapts itself readily to the needs of the body, and is a good basis for a trim and becoming style.

the waistline at the bust, is the style of the day, and is a good basis for a trim and becoming style.

ROGUEY ON THE TURF.

That it exists wherever Races Are Run
No One Will Deny.

The attraction of betting is easy to understand, but one must think a little more to comprehend why betting on races tends so exceptionally to make men rogues. It is all very well to deny the fact, and to assert, what is perfectly true, that there are honest owners, honest trainers, and honest bookmakers on the turf; but as a matter of fact, the "sportsman" denies that the amount of roguey in racing transactions is extraordinary. Numbers of owners are utterly distrustful, the jockey who never sells a race is praised as a moral hero—just remember the columns of moral laudation lavished on Archer—and as for the bookmaker who always pays—which he must do if he is to get good customers—he stands on a level with a mil-itiaman philanthropist.

There is not a betting man in the country who is not full to the lip of the bottomless pit of the betting-man's repertoire. Some are simply gathered all around; some are gauged,
some or shrilled to a greater or less
depth, either all around, on one or both hips, or across the front only; others
have lengthwise tufts in front from
the top to any desired depth,
gradually lengthening toward the middle and forming a sort of pointed culture; and a becoming style for a person with large hips is to run the top, to
the depth of about six inches, in
lengthwise tufts about an inch wide
and the same distance apart, thus reducing it to a width that will fit easily
over the hips. For the latter arrangement the foundation skirt with a small pad in the back and a short stitch about twelve inches below it, a shoulder as a person with large hips is apt to wear flat in the back, and the tufts accentuate the effect.

Even in mounting a skirt of straight
broadcloth to the belt there is opportunity for variety. Some are simply
